DETAILED ACTION

1. Claim 3 is objected to because of the following informalities: In claim 3, line 4, "valve" should be –value-. Appropriate correction is required.
2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

3. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Gradu (USPN 6,645,108).

Gradu teaches a four wheel drive vehicle with a switch control means 44 and a gradual switching control means for gradually increasing the torque the transmission is transmitting before switching mode. Gradu teaches a controller that determines actual torque Ta, desired or optimal torque To (col. 6, lines 46-59) and determines the torque difference. It also teaches that if the actual torque transmitted to the coupling 44 is smaller than the optimal torque by a particular difference, then the "controller gradually increases the current in the clutch" (col. 7).

4. Claims 3-5, 7, and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Takahashi (USPN 5,813,490) in view of Gradu.

Takahashi teaches a four-wheel drive system with a mode switching control 21 means and a switching inhibiting means that prevents a mode change from occurring based on front to rear wheel speed difference and vehicle speed.

Takasaki teaches providing lamps in the driver compartment of the vehicle to indicate various conditions. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to similarly signal to the driver the four-wheel drive mode state, in order to inform the driver of the current drive mode.

Takahashi lacks a means for gradually decreasing the torque the transmission is transmitting before switching mode. Takasaki teaches providing blinking lamps to indicate various conditions.

Gradu teaches a four-wheel drive vehicle with a switch control means and a gradual switching control means for gradually increasing the torque the transmission is transmitting from two wheel drive mode to full four wheel drive mode, in response to a determined difference between actual and desired torque transmission through the coupling.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide the Takahashi system with a means for gradually increasing torque before switching mode, as taught by Gradu, in order to effect smooth transition between modes. Regarding claims 7 and 8, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide a blinking light to indicate to the driver when mode selection is being inhibited or the gradual control operation is active, in order to notify the driver of the present driving condition. It would also have been obvious to provide a means for determining a difference between target and present torques, as discussed above, in order to effectively operate the control system.

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 2-5, 7 and 8 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
